Each person conducts their spiritual relationship in their own way, guided by their particular belief system. With over 50 years of planning and designing worship spaces, Sidock Architects approaches each project with an open mind, and an understanding that each and every belief system is unique. We have completed countless new worship facilities, renovations, and additions for a myriad of belief systems. From monumental cathedral style churches to re-purposed industrial buildings, we have created spaces for the catholic, baptist, reformed episcopal, lutheran, greek orthodox, and nondenominational faiths, to name a few. In addition to the worship spaces themselves, we have designed numerous parochial schools, gathering spaces, administrative offices, and athletic facilities for our clients. Sidock understand the sensitive nature of these projects and are very adept at working with parish councils, building committees, and pastors, in order to achieve the desired results on schedule and within the often very tight project budgets.
